

dup workers union

Dear Sally Kornbluth, Ed Balleisen, and Vincent Price:

Duke University Press has a global reputation for the books and journals it publishes in the humanities, the social sciences, and mathematics. Some of us have published our books and papers with DUP, many of us rely on DUP's publications in our own scholarship, and all of us benefit from the prestige that DUP's publications bring to the academic profile of Duke University.

DUP staff work hard to edit, produce, market, and distribute these works, and they deserve to negotiate for their working conditions.

As faculty, we join Duke and Durham community members, undergraduates, graduate students, research staff, campus workers, and elected representatives in supporting the Duke University Press Workers Union. We ask you not to interfere in the workers' right to organize, and to voluntarily recognize the DUP Workers Union.

Sincerely,

Amy Laura Hall Associate Professor of Christian
